IRS Benefit Plan Limits for 2019

Presented by Mike Ovshak

On November 1, 2018, the Internal Revenue Service released Notice 2018-83, announcing cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) that affect contribution limits for retirement plans in 2019. The list below, although not exhaustive, highlights key changes that retirement plan sponsors should be aware of, as well as some limitations that remain unchanged from 2018:

- The elective deferral limit is increasing from $18,500 to $19,000.
- The aggregate contribution limit for defined contribution plans is increasing from $55,000 to $56,000.
- The annual compensation limit used to calculate contributions is increasing from $275,000 to $280,00.
- The limitation on the annual benefit under a defined benefit plan is increasing from $220,000 to $225,000. (For a participant who separated from service before January 1, 2019, the limitation for defined benefit plans under Section 415(b)(1)(B) can be computed by multiplying the participant's compensation limitation, as adjusted through 2018, by 1.0264.)
- The dollar limit used in the definition of "key employee" in a top-heavy retirement plan is increasing from $175,000 to $180,000.
- The dollar limit used in the definition of "highly compensated employee" is increasing from $120,000 to $125,000.
- The catch-up contribution limit for employees ages 50 and older remains unchanged at $6,000.

The table below displays the 2018 and 2019 limits for a host of tax breaks:
